CONTRIBUTORS

MARTIN AITKEN is a translator of Scandinavian literature. His English translation of Hanne Ørstavik’s novel Love is being published this year by Archipelago Books.

DAVID BAKER’s recent books include Scavenger Loop (Norton, 2015) and Show Me Your Environment: Essays on Poetry, Poets, and Poems (Michigan, 2014). His upcoming collection is Swift: New and Selected Poems (Norton). He teaches at Denison University and is poetry editor for Kenyon Review.

STEVE BARBARO’s poems have appeared in The Common, New American Writing, Web Conjunctions, DIAGRAM, and Denver Quarterly. He currently lives near Chicago, where he is finishing a novel.

JANE COSTLOW teaches environmental humanities and Russian literature at Bates College. Recent publications include a book on the Russian forest in literature and art, and several essays on the role of holy springs in contemporary Russia.

CHAD DAVIDSON’s most recent collection of poems is From the Fire Hills (Southern Illinois University Press, 2014). Recent work appears or is forthcoming in AGNI, Five Points, Gettysburg Review, Kenyon Review, and others. He is professor of literature and creative writing at the University of West Georgia and co-directs Convivio, a summer writing conference in Postignano, Italy.

GERI DORAN is the author of two books of poetry, Sanderlings (Tupelo Press, 2011) and Resin (Louisiana State University Press, 2005), which received the Walt Whitman Award. A new collection, Blue Marble, is forthcoming from Tupelo Press in 2019. She teaches in the creative writing program at the University of Oregon.

DEWEY FAULKNER has taught at Yale and at the University of San Antonio. He has also worked for many years in newspaper, television, and radio as a music critic.

MARTA FIGLEROWICZ is author of Flat Protagonists: A Theory of Novel Character (Oxford) and Spaces of Feeling: Affect and Awareness in Modernist Literature (Cornell). She writes literary and cultural criticism for publications such as n+1, Jacobin, The Los Angeles Review of Books, Post45 (Contemporaries), MAKE Literary Magazine, and Boston Review. She teaches in the department of comparative literature at Yale.

MARY GORDON’s many books include novels, memoir, and literary criticism. She is a recipient of the Award for Literature from the Academy of Arts and Letters. Her most recent novel is There the Heart Lies (Pantheon, 2017). She is the Millicent C. McIntosh Professor of English at Barnard College.

RACHEL KUSHNER is author of the novels Telex from Cuba (2008) and The Flame-throwers (2015), both from Scribner and both finalists for the National Book Award. Her new novel, The Mars Room, will be published this spring.

LI-YOUNG LEE’s collection The Undressing: Poems will be published this year by W. W. Norton.
SETH LERER is Distinguished Professor of Literature at the University of California at San Diego. His Children’s Literature: A Reader’s History from Aesop to Harry Potter (2008) won the National Book Critics Circle Award and the Truman Capote Prize in Criticism. Since then, he has published a memoir, Prospero’s Son (2013), and Tradition: A Feeling for the Literary Past (2016). His most recent book, Shakespeare’s Lyric Stage, will appear this autumn.

LIDA MAXWELL teaches at Trinity College, Hartford, and is visiting professor of political science at Boston University. She is currently finishing a book on Chelsea Manning and the politics of truth-telling. Recent work includes the article “Queer/Love/Bird/Extinction: Rachel Carson’s Silent Spring as a Work of Love” (Political Theory).

SHANE McCRAE is author of several poetry collections, including Mule (2011), Blood (2015), The Animal Too Big to Kill (2015), and In the Language of My Captor (Wesleyan University Press, 2017), a finalist for the National Book Award. He teaches in the writing program at Columbia University.

DINA NAYERI’s second novel, Refuge, was published last July by Riverhead Books. She is the winner of an O. Henry Prize and an NEA literature grant. Her work has recently appeared in The Guardian, The New York Times, Los Angeles Times, and the Wall Street Journal, and has been translated into fourteen languages.

HANNE ØRSTAVIK, born in the far north of Norway, moved to Oslo at sixteen. She is author of more than ten novels. Love (Kjærlighet) was published in 2006 to great acclaim. This excerpt is from an English translation by Martin Aitken, to be published this year by Archipelago Books.

KATE PARTRIDGE is the author of the collection Ends of the Earth (University of Alaska Press, 2017). Her poems have appeared in Pleiades, Alaska Quarterly Review, Blackbird, and Colorado Review, among others. She is a graduate fellow at the University of Southern California, where she is pursuing a Ph.D. in literature and creative writing.

RUSH RANKIN’s most recent books are Paschal’s Other Wager, a collection of poetry, and In Theory, a mediation on literary aesthetics. His work has appeared in The Paris Review, Triquarterly, Antioch Review, and other journals. He teaches philosophy at the Kansas City Art Institute.

HENRY SLOSS is author of two books of poems: The Threshold of the New (University of South Carolina Press) and Blue Ridge Pie (privately printed).

CHRISTOPHER SPAIDE is a Ph.D. candidate in English at Harvard University, specializing in modern and contemporary American poetry. His criticism and poetry have appeared or are forthcoming in Boston Review, The Common, Poetry, Public Books, and Slate.

ROBERT THOMAS is author of two collections of poems, Door to Door (Fordham University Press), chosen by Yusef Komunyakaa for the Poets Out Loud Prize; and Dagging the Lake (Carnegie Mellon University Press).
His most recent book, Bridge (BOA Editions), a sequence of lyrical stories, was awarded the 2015 PEN Center USA Literary Award for Fiction.

HENRY WALTERS is a naturalist, teacher, falconer, and writer-in-residence at the Dublin School, in Dublin, New Hampshire. His first book of poems, Field Guide A Tempo, was a finalist for the 2016 Kate Tufts Discovery Prize.

JOHN SIBLEY WILLIAMS is editor of two Northwest poetry anthologies and the author of nine collections, including Disinheritance and Controlled Hallucinations. He serves as editor of The Inflectionist Review and works as a literary agent. He lives in Portland, Oregon.

RYAN WILSON’s first book, The Stranger World, was awarded the 2017 Donald Justice Poetry Prize (West Chester University Poetry Center/Measure Press). His work appears in periodicals such as First Things, Five Points, The Hopkins Review, The New Criterion, and The Sewanee Review. Currently a doctoral candidate at The Catholic University of America and the editor of Literary Matters, he lives with his wife north of Baltimore.

KATHLEEN WINTER’s first collection, Nostalgia for the Criminal Past, won the 2013 Texas Institute of Letters first book award. The collection I will not kick my friends won the 2017 Elixir Poetry Prize and will be published next month by Elixir Press.

GEORGE WITTE’s collections of poems include Does She Have a Name? (NYQ Books, 2014), Deniability (Orchises Press, 2009), and The Apparitioners (Orchises, 2005). New poems have appeared or are forthcoming in Antioch Review, Hollins Critic, Hopkins Review, Measure, and Poetry Northwest. 