What space can we attempt to claim bracketed here inside a plane. The seat-back drops: a paradox. You’re packed inside a folding box.

Each book-end stakes out territory. Is this her arm-rest; whose fresh story? Embrace your own invisible. In fiction find a miracle.

Invent a life from something lost. A ticket to another coast. We land where we’ve lived before. The heart darts through the open door.